(Exhibit A)
DeITel, Inc. Customer Proprietary Network Information (CPNI)

Background on CPNI

- In the normal course of providing telephone service, DeITel collects and maintains certain information about customer accounts. This information, when matched to a customer's name, address and calling or originating billing telephone number is known as "Customer Proprietary Network Information" or CPNI for short.
- Examples of CPNI include information typically available from details on a customer's monthly telephone bill -- the type of line, technical characteristics, class of service, current telephone charges, long distance and local service billing records, directory assistance charges, usage data and calling patterns.
- Data must combine personally identifiable information with proprietary network information before it can be considered CPNI.
- Subscriber list information, such as a customer's name, service address and telephone numbers, by itself, is not CPNI.

How DeITel, Inc. uses your CPNI

- DeITel does not sell CPNI to unaffiliated third parties and abides by the federal and/or state CPNI rules that apply to all telecommunications carriers.
- Ordinarily, we may use your CPNI for marketing our products and services, or the products and services of our third-party partners, as outlined elsewhere in this policy. Such marketing is limited to marketing products directly to you, and not to any other person or business found within your CPNI (such as a telephone number in your call-details)
- If you would like to restrict the use of your CPNI for the marketing of products and services, please contact customer service. Restricting use will not eliminate all DeITel marketing contacts.
- We will never use your call-details to market any products to telephone numbers which you receive calls from, or place calls to.
- Nothing in this policy shall be construed to prevent DeITel from releasing generalized network statistics, such as our overall network usage and a generalized view of our customers calling patterns, as long as such information is not identifiable (i.e. doesn't contain any names, addresses, specific telephone numbers, or other personally identifiable information).
